

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An image sensor includes an image sensing portion for receiving incident light that is converted to a plurality of charge packets; a transfer mechanism for transferring the charge packets from the image sensing portion; 5 and an output structure that receives the charge packets from the transfer mechanism for transporting output signals from the image sensor, wherein the output structure comprises a transparent conductor for a gate electrode gate.